

David Thomas's career spans 25 years in three major cities (London, Hong Kong and Sydney) with experience in financial services and consulting. A successful entrepreneur, having set up, run and sold three businesses, he has also held senior roles in large institutions and consulted to many financial services organisations.

David's Asian experience and network began in 1987 when he moved to Hong Kong from London and set up his own financial planning business, which rapidly grew from a start-up company to a respected and credible provider of independent and objective financial advice to the expatriate community in Hong Kong and other parts of Asia.

In 1995, David moved to Sydney and is now fully immersed in the movement of business, investment, trade and information that flows between Australia and Asia, conducting presentations, training, workshops and delegations focused on opportunities in China, India, Russia and other global hotspots, developing joint ventures and business alliances, building networks and relationships, and facilitating introductions and contacts for individuals and businesses.

As the CEO of Think Global Consulting, David fulfils his passion to develop strong and sustainable business connections between developed and emerging countries, including:

- ▶ conducting presentations, seminars and workshops.
- ▶ leading business delegations and study tours to global hotspots.
- ▶ running leadership programs, conferences, exhibitions and networking events.
- ▶ developing joint ventures and business alliances, building networks and relationships, and facilitating introductions and contacts for business leaders.
